Then he found his voice and cried out; cried out again as he saw the open window and the gray vacancy of the clearing beyond. She was answered by quiet assent and nods of the head. She did not acknowledge it but plowed right on. "We have been studying this problem for some time now, and we believe there is a solution. It would not be feasible to send a contingent of adult humans, either as a functioning community or in some suspended state, with the ship; it is in too advanced a stage of construction to change its primary design parameters. But then, why send adult humans at all?" He spread his arms appealingly. "After all, the objective is simply to establish an extension of our race where it would be safe from any calamity that might befall us here, and such a location would be found only at the end of the voyage. The people would not be required either during the voyage or in the survey phase, since ' machines are perfectly capable of handling everything con- "It is. I am. C'est la vie."
