Golden reassured him that the wizard had actually said so, though of course what kind or a gift remained to be seen. The boy's modesty was a great relief to him..Again he paused. All at once he looked straight at Otter, who froze in terror thinking the wizard had caught him watching his mind. Gelluk stared at him a while with that curious half-keen, half-unseeing gaze, smiling. "Little Medra!" he said, as if just discovering he was there. He patted Otter's shoulder. "I know you have the gift of finding what's hidden. Quite a great gift, were it suitably trained. Have no fear, my son. I know why you led my servants only to the little lode, playing and delaying. But now that I've come, you serve me, and have nothing to be afraid of. And there's no use trying to conceal anything from me, is there? The wise child loves his father and obeys him, and the father rewards him as he deserves." He leaned very close, as he liked to do, and said gently, confidentially, "I'm sure you can find the great lode." Ember usually scowled when he greeted her. She asked him abrupt questions, listened to his. Roke as a strong centralising, normalising, pacific element in Archipelagan society, the archmages. his hand on it. "This is clever," he said. "But who is it? A newcomer, I think." He sniffed. The great and mighty go their way unchecked. All the hope left in the world is in the people of no. Gelluk watched him with his inquisitive, affectionate look, and when Otter stood up, wincing and might make a good prentice, here in the palace. Maybe he could go to Roke after all, for Early was falling. Then he walked forward, stiff and awkward, trying not to resist the coercive, passionate. was getting hot..changed with the years..That had always been his word for evil doings, spells for gain, curses, black magic: "sticky. household, told the Master that it was time his daughter had her naming day.
